“ My favorite memories of Uncle Ted (Donut man) were every Wednesday evening he and Aunt Lois would come over to our house, when growing up. He would always bring with him Dunkin Donuts. We would sit and visit while enjoying donuts until the adults would start playing cards. He always took the time to talk with us kids first. He made us feel special.

These are my favorite memories of Uncle Ted too... and even once we were in college and happened to be home on Wednesday, he'd always talk to us like no time had passed, still ready to share some words of wisdom. He and Lois loved sneaking bites of donuts to Max on those evenings. They both loved our four legged friends as much as we did. So glad they're rejoined in heaven today... I'm sure Mom and Dad are playing cards with them on Wednesdays again. And they're sneaking bites of donuts with Max :-)

I didn't know this card-playing tradition started so many years ago. Caron and I joined Ted, Lois, Mom and Dad and other family members at the house off Hieland Road on Wednesday nights. After Mom died, Dad, Ted & Lois and others came to our house for card playing for many years. When Ted & Lois moved into Bradley Royale nursing home we started playing there once a week. A lot of family members got involved with these card nights over the 40+ years. What a wonderful tradition...so typical of the Wheeler family.

“ Caron & I have shared SO many great memories with Ted, it was hard to pick one special time. However, I think the Peoria Rivermen vs. Fayetteville Marksmen hockey game in 2018 was an event that he truly enjoyed. Our tickets said row 1, so we sat in the first row behind the glass. Later we discovered our tickets were for row 1 of Section B...about 12 rows back. However, the people who had tickets for the seats we were sitting in agreed to sit in some empty seats near ours and let us have our front row, fantastic views, scared out of our minds when players crashed into the glass front row seats. The Peoria Rivermen won in a high scoring game, something like 7-3, and as you would expect in a hockey game when one team gets a big lead...there were a lot of fights. Ted was more than happy to explain to Caron why there were so many fights, but she still felt the fights made the game less enjoyable, but Ted & I did enjoyed the fights. That was Ted's last "road trip", and I think he enjoyed the long ride in the car and getting out for most of the day. I only wish we could have had more "road trips" for Ted.

“ My favorite memory of Ted, of course, is that he walked me down the aisle, and Rosie and Linda, too, I think. And he loved holding babies. Always had a gentle touch around little kids. He was my Godfather, and held the family together when financially we needed to make Mother comfortable in her own home. He was smart, intelligent, smarter than the average bear. He will be missed. God bless him.
